Participate in the process and make a difference in your community.

Here's your chance to comment on the Mayor's proposal to spend $150 million in Housing and Urban Development (HUD) Funds in the City of Los Angeles.

HUD funds are now used to finance:

- Training for Start-ups and Small Businesses
- Construction of Job Training Centers
- After school programs for children of low- and moderate-income working parents
- Hot meals and health screening for elderly and disabled citizens
- Construction or expansion of community centers and health care facilities
- Street lighting and sidewalk repair

Funds must be used to primarily benefit low- and moderate-income persons. Your viewpoint is essential to the prudent use of these funds. We welcome your participation, and your voice will be heard.
